

1772 Census of Schönsee, Tiegenhof District, West Prussia

Geheimes Staatsarchiv Preussischer Kulturbesitz, Berlin, Germany:

Glenn H Penner (gpenner@uoguelph.ca)

In 1772 Poland underwent its first partition at the hands of three foreign powers. As a result, nearly the entire Mennonite population ended up in the new province of West Prussia. A census of West Prussia was conducted during the winter of 1772 to 1773. This was a tax census and counted population in terms of the number of men, women, sons, daughters, servants, etc. in each household. There were two exceptions in the regions where Mennonites lived – Schönsee and Schöneberg. The census lists for these villages include the names of all household members as well as their ages! They also include the amount of land and farm animals in the possession of each family as well as the amount of seed sown in the past year. Since Schönsee had a much larger Mennonite population, I have put the population and agricultural part of the census into a spreadsheet. I have also included a column which takes the amount of land in Hufen, Morgen and Ruten and converts that into acres.

Scans of the original census are available for viewing.

I have tried to maintain the spellings as found in the original. I have translated the column headings into English. I have modified the column originally given as “Profession” to include the relationship of each person to the household head. The census includes 33 landowning families (Wirth), 26 Eigengärtner families as well as 43 families classified as Mieths Einwohner. There were 7 people living in the “Armen Haus”, or poor house. Included with Schönsee is a 5 Hufen (208 acres) section of land called Fünf Huben. The families are numbered separately in each of these groups. Note that the numbering of the families does not appear to have any specific meaning. More specifically, the numbers assigned to each landowning family has nothing to do with a property number!

The names of the household heads are emphasized in bold and grey cells in the spreadsheet indicate that the information is missing in the original table.

I have removed the -in and -sche endings on all surnames given for females.

The unit for amounts of seed sown is the Scheffel (pl. Scheffeln). The Scheffel was defined differently depending on location and time period. A “Prussian” Scheffel has been defined as 55 liters [1] and a “Gdansk” Scheffel has been defined as 49 liters [2]. The Canadian bushel is 36 liters.

There are two categories for male servants – Jung (pl. Jungen) and Knecht (pl. Knechte). In general, those over about 15 or 16 years old were classified as Knechte.

Several terms need to be defined:

Wirth = land owner

Schultz = mayor
Eigengärtner = owner of a house and garden
Mieths Einwohner = renting resident
Schneider = tailor
Schuster = shoe maker
Krüger = innkeeper
Witwe = widow
Weber = weaver
Lederhändler = leather merchant
Häcker = general store proprietor
Schmidt = smith
Zimmermann = carpenter
1 Reichsthaler = 90 Groschen
1 Groschen = 90 Pfennig

This list can be compared with the 1776 census of Mennonites in West Prussia and the 1789 census of Mennonite landowners in West Prussia. Unlike this 1772 census, the 1776 and 1789 censuses name only the head of the household.

A few comments:

- 1) Only about one-third of the families in Schoensee were landowning.
- 2) All but 3 of the landowning families were Mennonite.
- 3) These families owned from 8 to 140 acres of land. Most owned much less than what was typical for their land-owning descendants in Russia and North America.
- 4) Only landowning families had servants (there is one exception).
- 5) Most of the servants were German, with a few Mennonites or Poles.
- 6) A few people lived in the "Armen Haus" (or poor house). They were all Mennonites. Was this a church sponsored poor house? Essentially no research has been done on poor houses among the Mennonites of West Prussia.
